AirAsia Foundation at the World Urban Forum 9 Village

Kuala Lumpur, 14 February 2018 - AirAsia Foundation enjoyed a successful week at the living village of the 9th World Urban Forum in Kuala Lumpur, receiving an estimated 4,000 visitors at its pop-up store at the Social Enterprise Market. In addition, its talks and workshops received active participation, generating positive feedback both from social entrepreneurs invited to share as well as visitors keen to learn more about their activities.

"We are thrilled to have participated in this event as it greatly helped in raising awareness to social entrepreneurship business models in Asean. Visitors to our store shared many positive feedback while social entrepreneurs that we hosted were also happy to have been able to use this platform to introduce their products to an international clientele," said AirAsia Foundation Executive Director Yap Mun Ching.

She added that the encouraging response has strengthened the Foundation’s business case to explore setting up a permanent Destination: GOOD social enterprise store in Kuala Lumpur’s city centre later this year in partnership with Think City. Other than the recent pop-up, AirAsia Foundation’s social enterprise pop-up can be found at the Kuala Lumpur International Airport (klia2).

Here are our event highlights:

Destination: GOOD pop-up store at the Social Enterprise Market

AirAsia Foundation’s Destination: GOOD pop-up store was part of the Social Enterprise Market held at 2 Jalan Hang Kasturi, Kuala Lumpur from 7 to 13 February. The pop-up store retailed over 200 sustainably-produced items from Asean social enterprises including household items, apparels, accessories, food, crafts, etc. Among bestsellers are Malaysian Unity of Culture’s tapir soft toys; bags and accessories by Nazanin, a lifestyle label started by Afghan refugees living in Malaysia; and silver jewellery and decorative items by Selaka Kotagede, a label by 13 traditional Yogyakarta silversmiths who are also beneficiaries of AirAsia Foundation’s social enterprise grant.
Thai social enterprise Folkcharm Crafts showcased its collection of ethical wear made from carefully-crafted, environmentally-friendly products from organic and natural materials, embodying the sustainable fashion movement. The attractive apparel were modeled by versatile AirAsia cabin crew and styled with accessories by other social enterprises available at the AirAsia Foundation’s Destination: GOOD pop-up store at klia2.
